

Shaping the future of Education Policy

The cause and cure for early failure in education will be the subject of a symposium hosted by The Success for All Foundation in partnership with Fischer Family Trust and The Education Data Lab on 15th March 2018.

Attendees are expected to include key decision makers in education, senior educational researchers and executive headteachers of some of the country's best performing MATs as well as leaders from local authorities and children's services.

This launch event aims to develop ideas, opinions and experience so that we can collectively share this with policy makers and help shape government thinking. We believe that this discussion will impact on the thinking and actions of policy makers.

We would love to hear your views and invite you to submit questions for our panel to discuss. To do this, either comment below or send an email to info@successforall.org.uk.

Furthermore, if you wish to express an interest in future, similar, events then get in touch.

